

Ida B. Wells (1862-1931) was a fearless African American journalist who worked to promote racial justice. She courageously opposed violence against black Americans. She is also remembered for demanding that black women be included in the suffrage movement.